PROJECT DESCRIPTION

The project consisted of remodeling and combining three racquetball courts to provide a strength training room for the SDSU club sports. The scope included structural renovation and rework required to support new equipment and wall openings, architectural rework and associated finish work.

ADDED VALUE

Our team was able to work with the University to manage the construction schedule of this remodel project in an occupied gym facility without the interruption to classes and sports team practices in adjacent spaces. In addition, early scoping of the project and constructibility review resulted in no added cost to the project.

SERVICES PROVIDED

Our team provided construction project management services including estimating, change management and construction oversight.
